DEHRADUN, 30 Apr: Governor Dr KK Paul said today that, even at the school level, students should be taught well about the country's history and its cultural values. They should know about the social life, art, culture and philosophy of India.

The Governor was talking to the students of the Doon School, who made a courtesy call on him at Raj Bhawan. He said that reading books other than text books was very important to broaden one's horizons of knowledge. The information from the internet was not a source of wisdom. He stressed on the need for reading good books.

The Governor added that students could organise programmes related to cleanliness, respecting women and awareness regarding road accidents. Students asked questions which the Governor answered in detail.

He emphasised that violence against women was shameful and a change of mentality needed to be brought in, besides the laws.

Boys had to be taught to respect girls and women right from childhood. If they were taught to respect their mothers and sisters, they would learn to respect all girls and women.

He also stressed on the need to learn road safety and being aware about cleanliness.

He asked the students about Kedarnath and Badrinath shrines. They were also asked what books they were reading these days.
