A Final Goodbye

The Doon School Weekly bids farewell to Ms. Priyanka Majumdar. On this occasion, her friends, students, and colleagues share their thoughts on her tenure.

I remember when Priyanka first joined School about 13 years ago, when her daughter Shivya was only about 4-5 years old. Since then, I have always seen her do all her work effortlessly and graciously. She has discharged her pastoral duties in a dedicated and professional way and her caring and polite nature is always so refreshing for colleagues and students alike. I believe she has been an integral part of our community all these years. I thank her for working with such commitment, and for being a kind colleague and friend.

-SMV

From the very beginning of my life on campus, PMR ma'am was one of the most caring and forgiving people I can think of. My first year in School would not have been the same if it weren't for her presence. Whether it was Chhota Hazri or a pre-dinner badminton session, she was ready for just about anything. I will always remember the scolding we got for playing football in the rain and the countless CDH memories involving the infamous 'bulletproof rotis'. She was always there to keep a check on our shenanigans no matter how ridiculous they were. Most importantly, she embodied the spirit of Martyn House and we are forever grateful for her care and compassion towards us.

-Arjun Prakash

Whether it was a missing sock or a g-store chit, PMR ma'am was always there to help us young D Formers in Martyn House. I am not alone when I say that in School, a Dame plays an essential role in our daily lifestyles and in taking care of our nutrition and health. She was always there when someone was in the hospital, and was always keeping tabs on more than 40 boys. If someone needed mental or physical assistance, she was present to fulfill that role. Regardless of the event, whether it was during meals or during important events in the house, she was there. To take care of boys who have only just entered School is not easy but PMR Ma'am made it look it was. Martyn House will miss you Ma'am.

ट्यूबरक्लोसिस मुक्त भारत

अधिवेशन अभ्यास

आज के कोरोना युग में सभी लोग मांक लगाते हैं, हांग को धीरे हो जाते हैं, जब से जब तक लोग आपने ध्यान देने और कोरोना के टेस्टिंग करते हैं। सार्क तो यह हो गया है विश्व के लोग और इससे हारी भारत के हाथ में आ गया है।

पर कोरोना और ट्यूबरक्लोसिस की अभिभावकता है। दोनों ही महत्वपूर्ण बीमारियों हैं, दोनों ही अस्पताल लोगों की जान ले चुकी हैं, दोनों ही एक समर्पित दवा के लिए। केटेड डॉक्टर से फैलती हैं। दोनों ही, अगर अधिकतम रिपोर्ट आजाद हो जाते हैं, किसी को देखना नहीं है, और कई लोग भी यह मान लेते हैं कि बस अब उनके जीवन में रहकर यह भी हमारी जीवित के लिए।

इसलिए इंटरनेट बनाए रखा गया है, एक दूसरा संगठन WHO द्वारा इंटरनेट द्वारा देखा जा रहा है। तबसे अगर आप देखें कि टी-बी के रूप में इसे लें। निर्भरता तीव्र पर 25 लाख नए बच्चे के सार्क विश्व संघ संगठन WHO द्वारा इंटरनेट से लिखी जाती है। यह सार्क विश्व संघ संगठन WHO के सार्क हो गया है।

बाद में, अगर किसी कार्य में सार्क नहीं हो तब उस पर स्थिति करना आवश्यक होता है। क्या कार्य अंदर पर स्थिति करा रहा है? क्या कोई नाम नौकरी हो रही है? क्या इस पर काम हो रहा है? और अगर इसका जवाब दे तो हमसे जाना उचित है। यह देखना जरूरी है कि हम कहीं गलत रह जाएं?

पूरा विषय ने ट्यूबरक्लोसिस को जब से खत्म करने का 2020 तक का लघु रूप दिया है, पर विश्व ट्यूबरक्लोसिस के पर हमारे प्रभावकारी मंत्री जी ने 2015 तक भारत से टी-बी को देखने का डूब नियमित लिखा है। सक्रिय चाहिए कि सबसे पहले निर्देश ठीक से हो इसके लिए आवश्यक नहीं है।

सीपल इंटरनेट बनाए रखी महिला X भारत में नहीं है, बहुत साधन, विकिपीडिया, और फेसबुक से काफी असर अलग तरीकों से सरकार 2020 तक टी-बी मुक्त भारत का सपना देखा रहा है।

टी-बी को भारत से मिटाने के लिए हम एक टीम की तरह काम करना होगा, एक दूसरे संघ लेना होगा। पर जब भी हम टी-बी मुक्त भारत के लिए मोड़ा तो यह उचित है कि वह हमारे देश का जन संघर्ष हमारे लक्ष्य के लिए आगे जाएगी। हमें समय समय तरीकों से निपटने का प्रयास करेगा, तभी हमें उसका फल मिलेगा।

2025 टी-बी मुक्त भारत !! टी-बी हारेगा, देश जीतेगा !

मेडिना में हिंदी होती ही यह जंग, पहाड़ों का सुरंग देखकर सब होता है दंग।

होलोमें उजाड़ हैं अदुपुल गुलान, इस में पार्जन जीवन भारत को मेरा प्रारंभ।

होता हो ये एक अनुच्छेद कोहिरु का घर, जिसे अंग्रेजों ने बाल दिया अपने ताज पर।

कर्मी है हमारा आदेश, पर बाहु मुखुंड ने बनाया उसे रजस्तान की किस्म।

गौंड, शहर यहीं कभी–कभी होती है पानी की कठोरी, अब तक दुआ करने की हो शहरी बढ़ती है।

मेंट एक पर वैसे है कठोर, एक हजार कमाने के लिए किस्मन लगाता है हर तोड़।

A Study On Studying

Aryan Agarwal writes about the perils of studying

It is the 13th of March, and exams begin on the 15th. Two days remain. I can play today, or maybe not, but if at all I felt obliged to work I could always plan for when I do study, which is productive (or what I would like to believe, despite mounting empirical evidence). I pick out the laptop sleeve from the depths of my bag and pull out a cold, slim laptop and flip it open. I open a fresh Word document, and the first few words appear on the screen as I type them in. But then I look up and see the repulsively ordinary standard MS font; I scramble to shut the document, lest the most average font stares back at me and threatens to taint my memory. If not for an aesthetically appealing table, what else could compel me to pore over the pages of the same textbook that I read for the last Mid-years, and the Finals before that, (not to forget, that test-week that happened in the middle) and the first mid-years before them all. Anyhow, I skip over to a Google document, which I find to be a little more agreeable, at which point my laptop fan stops whirring and the machine dies. It feels like a conspiracy against me, and it is sapping the last remnants of any resolve within me, but then I had never protested much anyway. Laptop dead, a weighty helplessness sits within me - for a brief, altogether infinitesimal moment - until it occurs to me that I had been given the license to leave- to leave.

So, I leave and then I change, and then I run, after which I play. Then I walk back to the House. It is a quarter to seven now. I sit at the edge of my bed, aggressively rubbing my head with a towel as a vent for my self-loathing, while also doing so to try and rattle my brain back to normalcy - a normalcy that I often proclaim, had faded away mysteriously one day in A form.

I leave my room and walk to the CDH thinking up a resolution, about how these exams matter, and how I have to study harder. Maintaining a sour face, I scour far and wide for every last whip of self-contempt that I can find to put myself up to; and I have crossed the critical threshold. Now, I can feel a purpose in my gaze: a distinctively undeterred, gripping determination, a focus so cutting, it hurts my own eyeballs. I rediscover a sliver of hope, for my future and my aspirations, and as it was meant to be, I walk a little taller, with my head perhaps a little higher - to the CDH. I walk into the CDH, consumed by presumptive images of success that my meditations en route to the CDH have brought me. I get my food and take a seat at the table. Soon others join; I eat silently while others chatter around me. I discreetly leave, having had my dinner, and walk back to the House, trying to emulate the same focus or just think about it for fear of losing the precious thing were I to drift from it for even a second.

By the time I reach the House, I am in a fit of subdued slant-headed, crazy-eyed madness. I open the door and obsessively shut it back just so, that the two doors are parted by precisely a finger-length: not too much for noise to come in, but enough for a beckoning to be heard. As for my desk, I pick it up and balance it on my head while looking at the space around my room to see where I might place it, so as to optimize my efficiency of study. I place it at the foot of my bed but then it is blocking a path; so I decide to fit it into the right corner of my room, only to realize that I would have no access to a charging port. After 15 minutes of this ordeal, my rampantly exacerbating delirium leads to my dumping the desk in, of all places, the changing room.

I pull the chair out, step in front of it and draw it under me as I sit down in front of the desk. Mosquitoes whir around me, and I notice a streak of blue mint toothpaste that lines the wall to the right of the desk; I unbutton my track-top and take it off. I slide slowly on the chair to a low hunch, too exhausted to conduct a cognitive task or lift an eyelid. I am about to slide into untethered, effortless sleep, when the door flings open, rattling against the wall on either side; my roommate strides in and flings himself onto his bed. After two anguished breaths, he says, plainly “I can’t study.” I grin, and fall asleep.

Best of luck for the upcoming trials!
International Women’s Day

The Doon School Weekly writes about the significance of International Women’s Day.

International Women’s Day is observed to celebrate the success of women in all spheres of life and to reflect on the progress made by women throughout the world. The day has been observed for more than a century since it began in 1911. Celebrated on March 8 every year, the day also aims to highlight the difficulties and gender discrimination that women still face in society and recognize the social, economic, cultural, and political achievements of women.

It is a day to spread awareness among people regarding women’s rights and gender equality. In some countries, children and men give presents, flowers or cards to their mothers, wives, sisters or other women they know. But at the heart of International Women’s Day lies women’s rights. Across the world, there are protests and events to demand equality. Many women wear purple, a colour worn by the Suffragettes, women who campaigned for women’s right to vote in the early 20th century. Recently, marches and protests have gained force thanks to the #MeToo and #TimesUp movements against sexual harassment. To understand International Women’s Day, however, we need to understand its history.

The first National Woman’s Day was observed in the United States on February 28th, 1909. The Socialist Party of America designated this day in honour of the 1908 garment workers’ strike in New York where women protested against abysmal working conditions. The first milestone in the US was much earlier - in 1848. Indignant at women being barred from speaking at an anti-slavery convention, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott gathered a few hundred people at their nation’s first women’s rights convention in New York. Together, they demanded civil, social, political, and religious rights for women in A Declaration of Sentiments and Resolutions, a book by Elizabeth Stanton. This was a major step, but it was not until Clara Zetkin, a German feminist, pushed for it to be a holiday in 1910 that it really took off across Europe.

It was celebrated in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland in 1911 and became an important day for peace protests during World War I. Zetkin had trained as a teacher and was associated with the Social Democratic Party, one of the two major political parties in Germany today. She was a part of both the labour movement and the women’s movement. Vladimir Lenin, the head of the Soviet Union from 1917 to 1924, declared Women’s Day an official Soviet holiday after the October Revolution at the urging of his Commissar of Social Welfare, Alexandra Kollontai.

Later, it spread throughout the socialist world to places such as China and Cuba as an important day to recognize the contributions that women had made to both family and the economy.

The necessity for such a day can be seen in the fact that, according to the World Economic Forum, gender parity will not be achieved for almost a century. So, we must continue to spread awareness, because there is urgent work to be done. Legal restrictions have kept 2.7 billion women from accessing the same choice of jobs as men. Across the democratic world, less than 25 percent of parliamentarians were women, as of 2019. One in three women still experience gender-based violence.

The theme for International Women’s Day 2021 is ‘Choose to Challenge’. This means that we can all choose to challenge and call out gender bias and inequality and choose to seek out and celebrate women’s achievements. Thus, we can help create an inclusive society. Raising your hand is the pose for this year. It symbolises a commitment to call out inequality, call out bias, and question stereotypes.

During the COVID-19 crises, women have stood at the front lines as health care workers, caregivers, innovators, community organizers and effective leaders of countries. The crisis has highlighted both the centrality of their contributions and the disproportionate burdens that women carry. This year, we celebrate the tremendous efforts by women and girls around the world in shaping a more equal future and recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic.
